Daniel Webster High School

Volume XXXIX

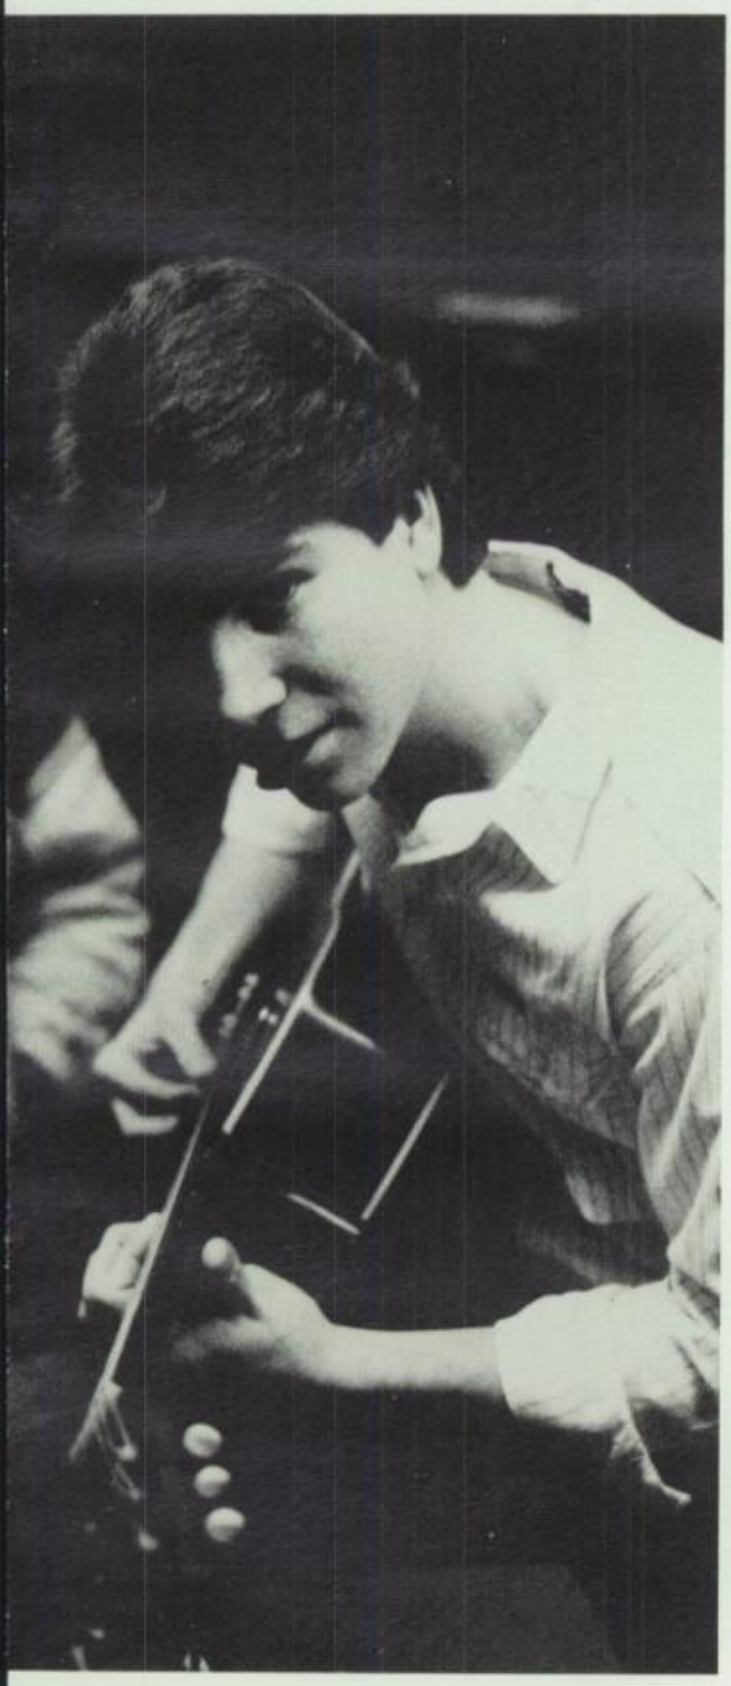
Forevermore...

Tulsa, Oklahoma 74107
1919 West 40th

'Mid the Hills of Oklahoma

At Webster High School, record high temperatures mirrored high spirits and enthusiasm in the fall of the year. School days were cut in half in order to keep students and faculty as comfortable as possible.

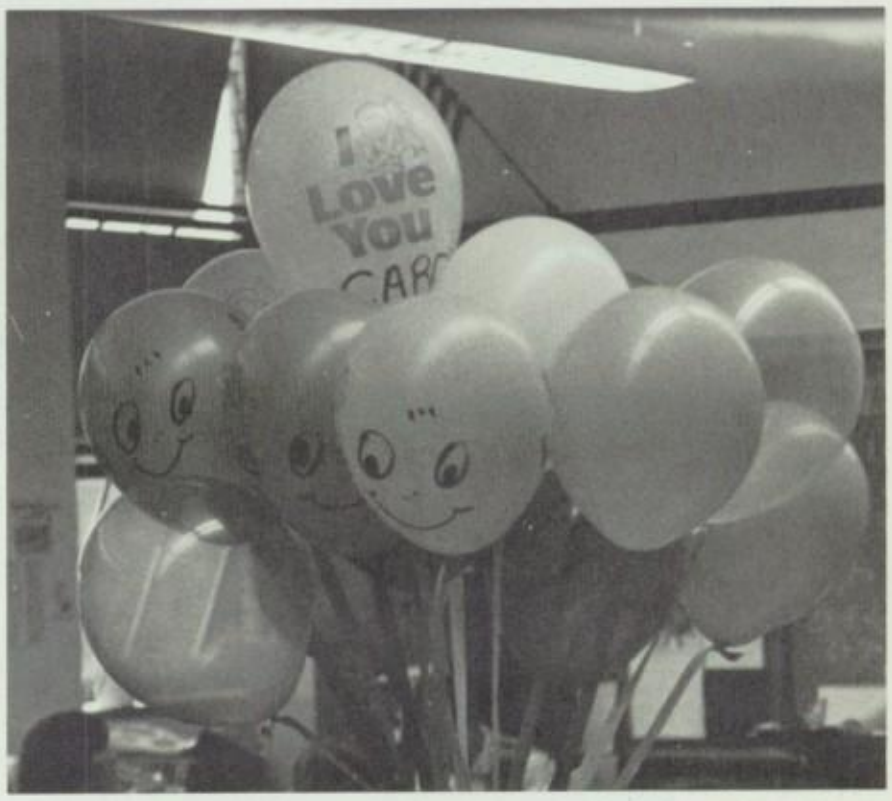
While students were trying to keep pace with the new school year, our football team was generating excitement and spirit, as well as exceeding many hopes and expectations.



'Neath the Sooner Sky

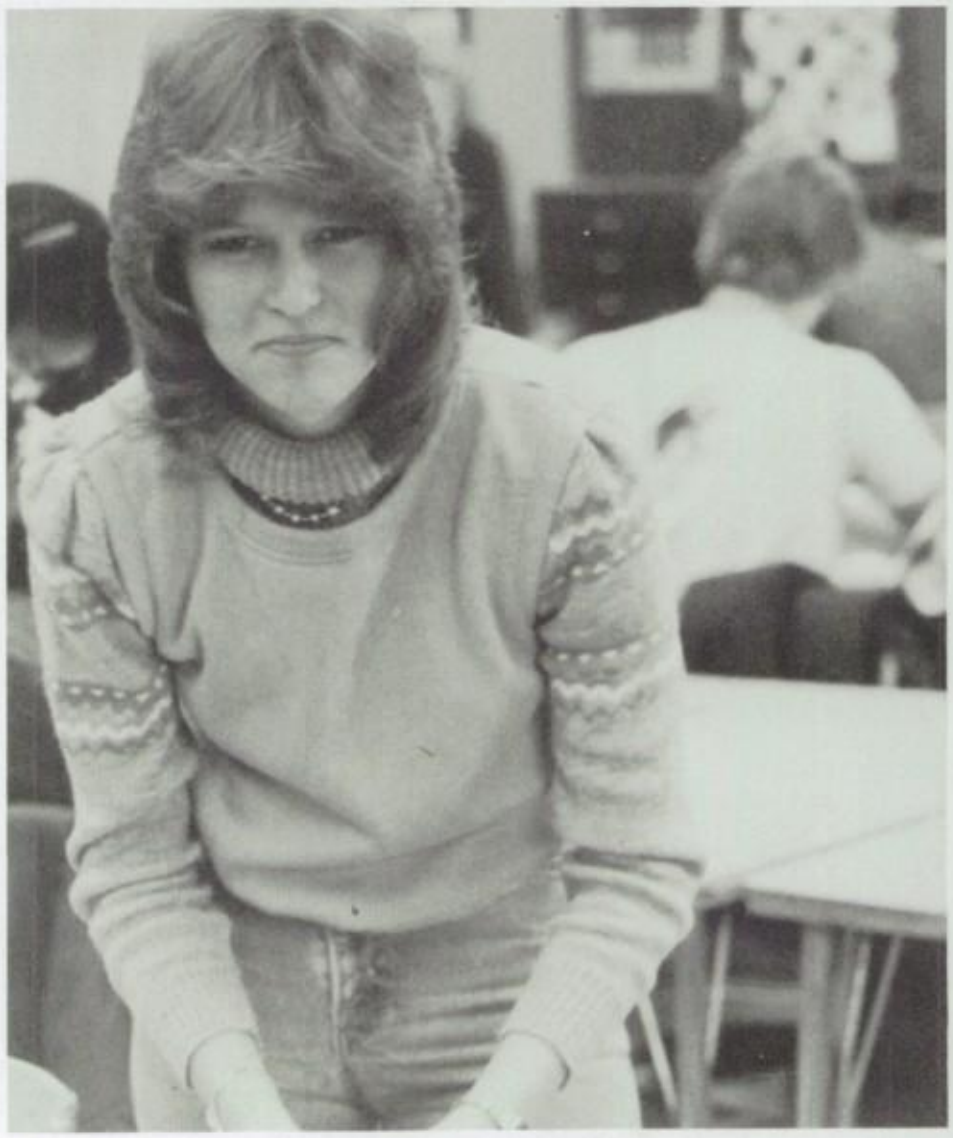
As Webster students became more involved, clubs and organizations began to plan projects and fund raising. The addition of the Keywanettes, a service organization for young women, was an inspiration for all.

Homecoming soon rolled around with the addition of Websters first Stationary Parade. Renee Hendrixson and Steve Harrison were selected to honor Webster in our activities, and did so with honor and dignity.



Stands Our Noble Alma Mater

Webster students were given a chance to grow socially as well as academically with such publications as George Orwells "1984" and "The Day After".



Daniel Webster High!

The Seniors had finally begun to realize the enormity of their upcoming decisions, and the class of '84 began to really appreciate friends they will miss when the doors close in June, and there are no more assemblies, or proms, or movies at the Williams Center that scare Ms. Tibbs.

PEOPLE,

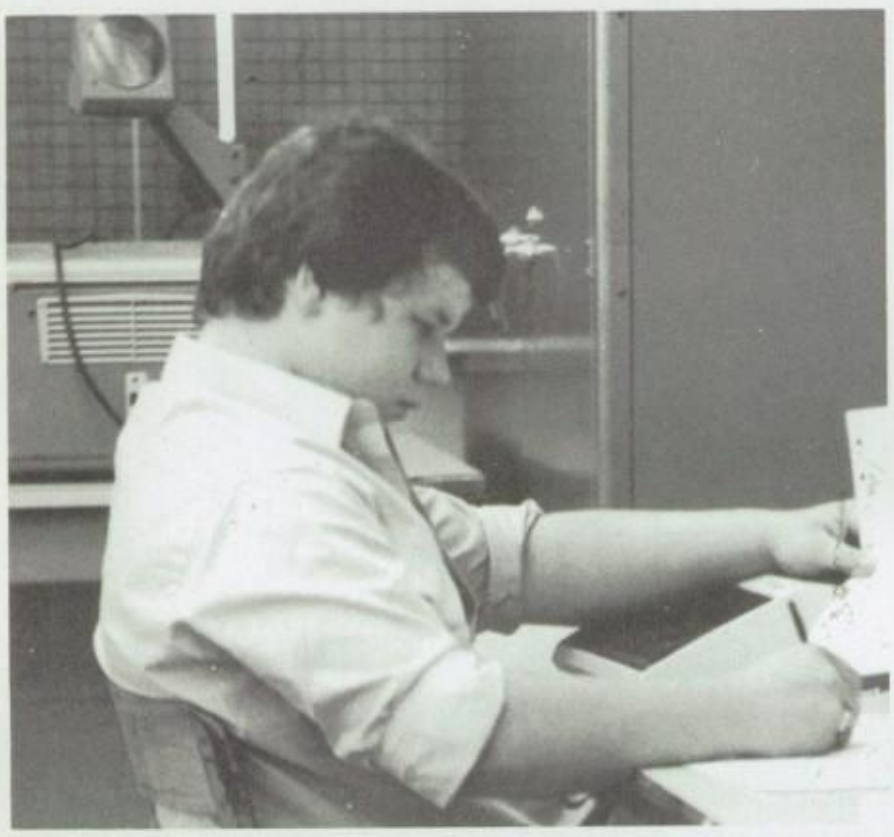
....the best part

These pages are dedicated to the teachers and friends who have a part in our high schools years.

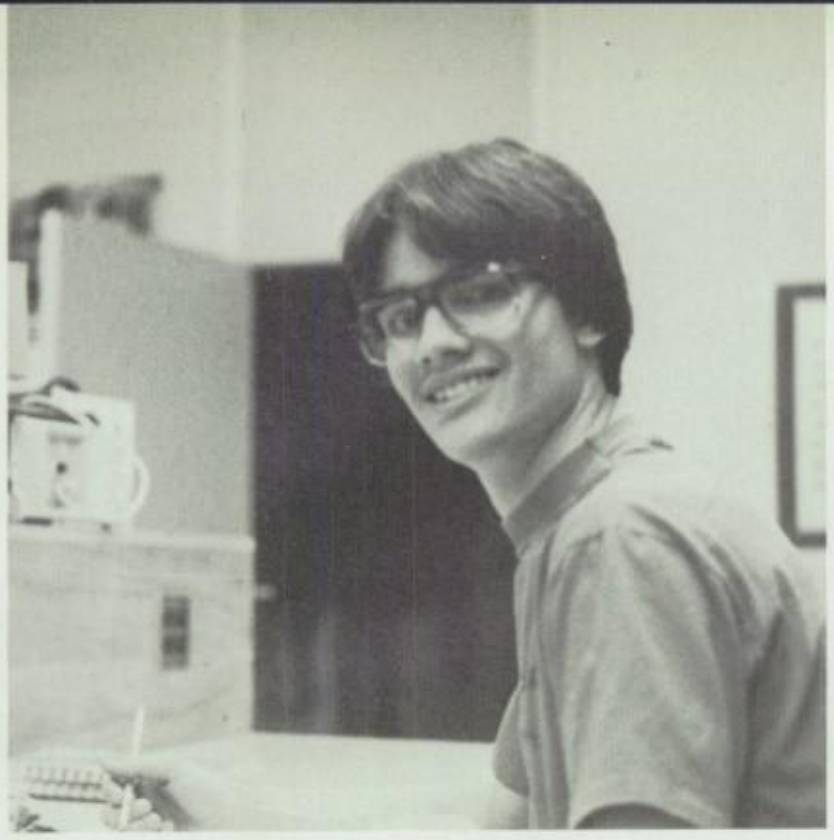
These people we associate with have the biggest single influence on our lives and what we eventually become. Of course we'll never forget Daniel Webster, but most of all we'll remember the best part: PEOPLE!

These pages are dedicated to the academics at Webster, and the role they play in our lives as students.

No one will ever realize the quality of all we have received, and we'll never show enough appreciation for those who have led. So, for this we say thanks, teachers, because the future is everything, with ACADEMICS.



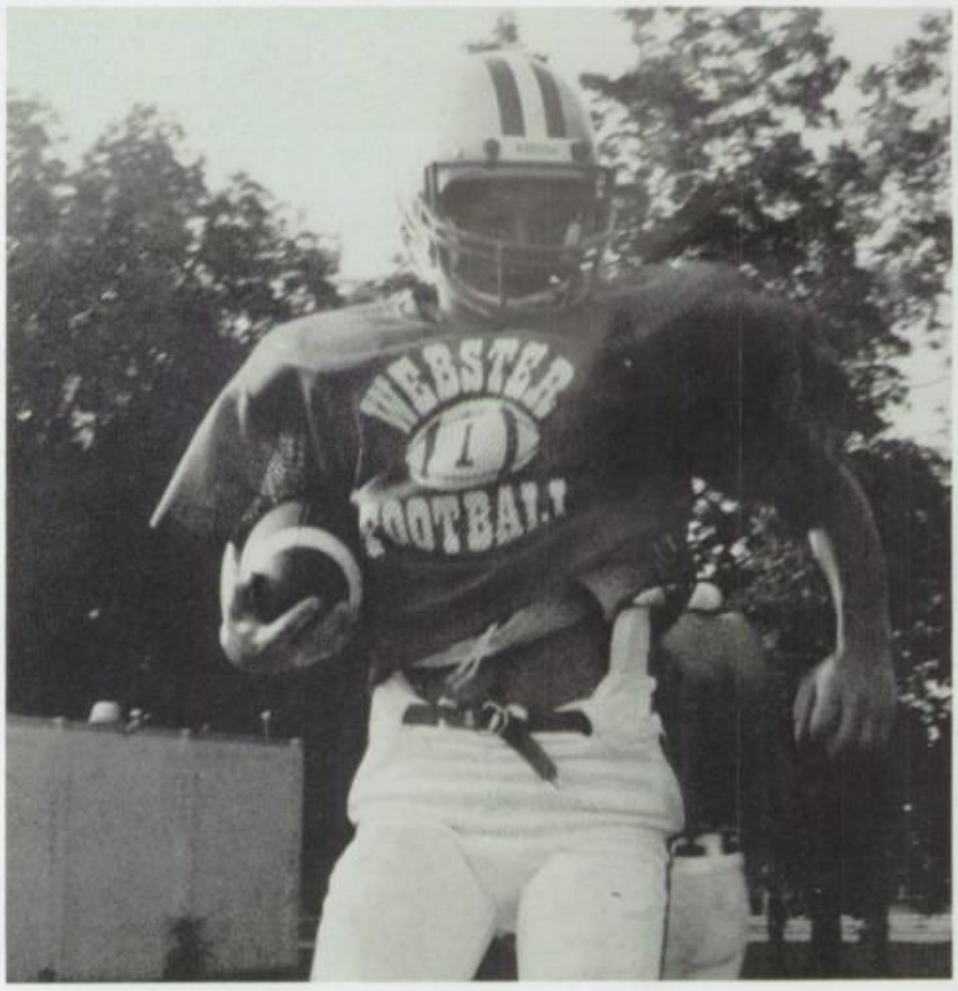
ACADEMICS.



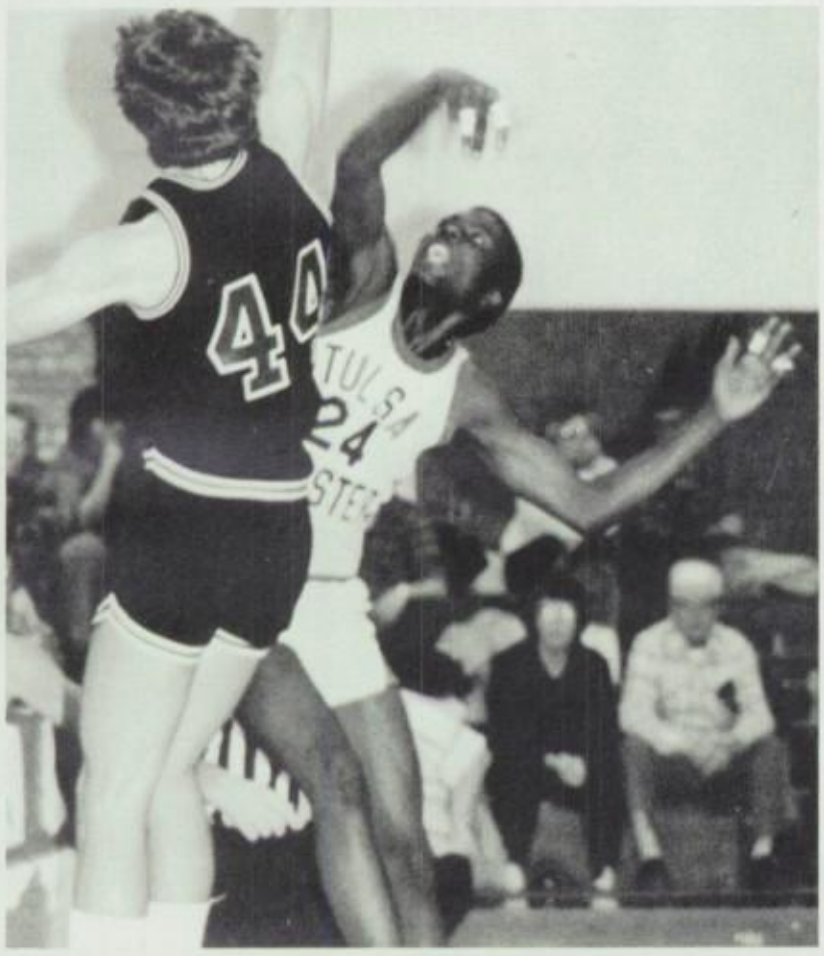
....the future is everything

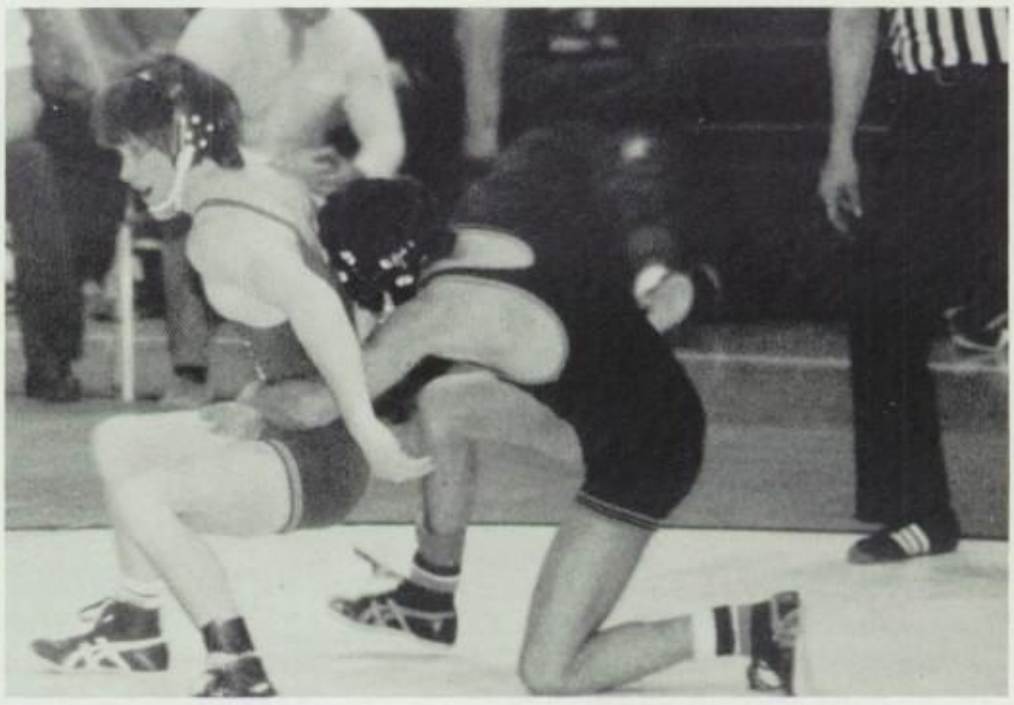
SPORTS.

These pages are dedicated to the sports programs at Webster. They encourage a competitive spirit, courage, and perfection. Without these programs, school life would be without much of the excitement and comradery that hold us together. For all our coaches do, we can never thank them enough for their help! They bring out the most, with SPORTS.



.....they bring out the best





ORGANIZATIONS.

These pages are dedicated to the clubs and organizations at Webster. These groups are what make up the network of activities and good times that hold Webster together. From parades with floats, to senior volleyball games, organizations provide interaction between students that starts lifelong friendships. For the good times they brought we'll never forget. Because they made it happen, ORGANIZATIONS.

....they make it happen

People

The Senior Class of '84 contrived to make this their best year ever. Their year was opened with the annual Senior/Parent breakfast. This was followed by several cookouts, a car wash, a pizza party at Crystal's, a Thanksgiving and a Christmas dance, balloon sales, the Halloween dress-up day, and the Senior ice-skating day. Some of the big highlights of the year were the Senior Volleyball game and movie, and the "Sexy Legs" contest featuring the Webster 'Dynasty' Wrestlers. The Senior class took 1st place in the Homecoming Hall Decorating contest and also took 2nd place in the Homecoming Stationary Parade.

There are many students at Webster endowed with remarkable talents. One such student is senior Jeff Harley who has an outstanding artistic ability. Over the past four years Jeff Harley has been one of the many names synonymous with art at Webster. In the past year, Jeff has had some of his artwork displayed at the Gilcrease Museum, and the West Regional Library. The artwork he designed for the 1983 yearbook received much praise from both students and teachers alike.

In the spring of 1980 there was a thought to closing Webster because of declining enrollment. Many Westsiders were frightened of this possibility, and support went up all around the community accompanied by cries of "I want to be a Webster graduate," and "Webster is the Westside," Through many combined efforts of both the school board and the community, a solution came through for Webster; the 9th grade students from Clinton Jr. High were transferred that following fall to Webster. This class will most be remembered as the group that helped the continuation of this great school.

Although learning can sometimes be a difficult process, there are a special few who strive to learn more than is necessarily required. Two such people are Mrs. Meeker and Mrs. Tibbs of the Webster English department. Both recently received doctorates in Educational Administration at Oklahoma State University. These two remarkable teachers are a valuable asset to all those at Webster.

The crowd was impatiently waiting for the halftime ceremony during the Webster-Claremore homecoming game. Finally, the band marched onto the field and behind them came Miss Daniel Webster and Warrior Chief and their royal court. Seniors of the Month

September

December

An honor bestowed each year upon a select group of seniors is the privilege of being chosen by their fellow classmates as "Senior of the Month." Most of those selected exhibit an outstanding leadership quality, high academic achievement, and are much admired by those in their class and member of the faculty. Two seniors (a boy and a girl) are chosen each month from September to May for this rare honor.

The Royal Court

As Miss Daniel Webster and Warrior Chief are chosen, their court is chosen also. The court is made up of two attendants and one brave from each class. The honor of being made a part of the royal court this year was bestowed upon: Seniors, Jana Lee and Chris Narrin, brave Mike Lambert. Juniors, Kye Vernon and Stacy Williams, brave Jeff Brown. Sophomores, Debbie Dickinson and Suzanne Leach, brave Andy Taylor. Freshmen, Brandy Hall and Becky Ryan, brave Scott Tharp.

The Homecoming week certainly met our expectations.

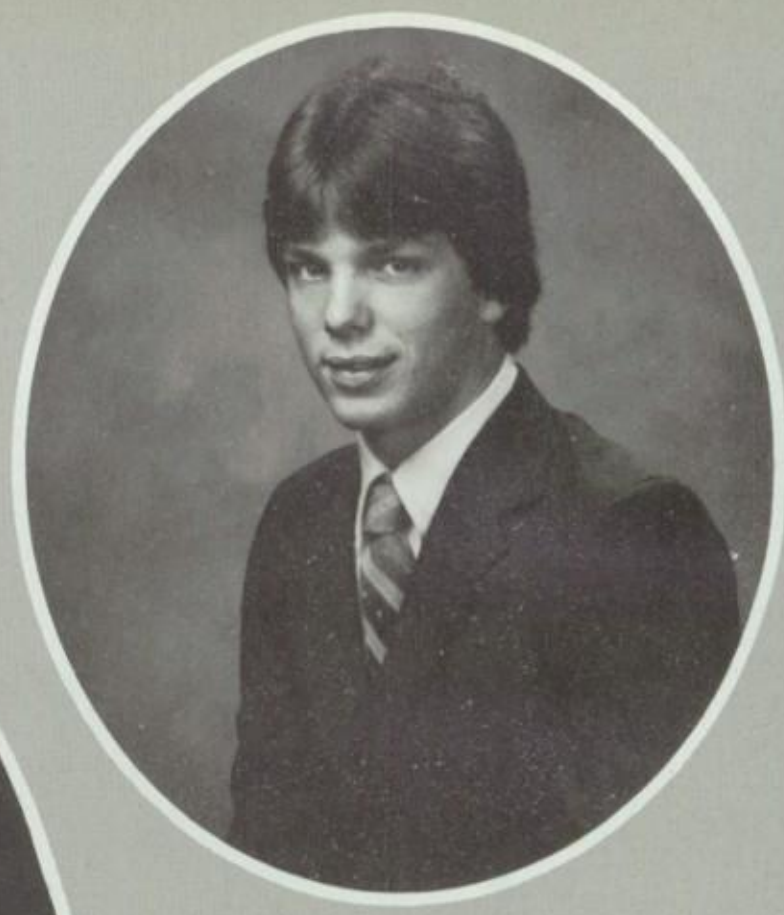
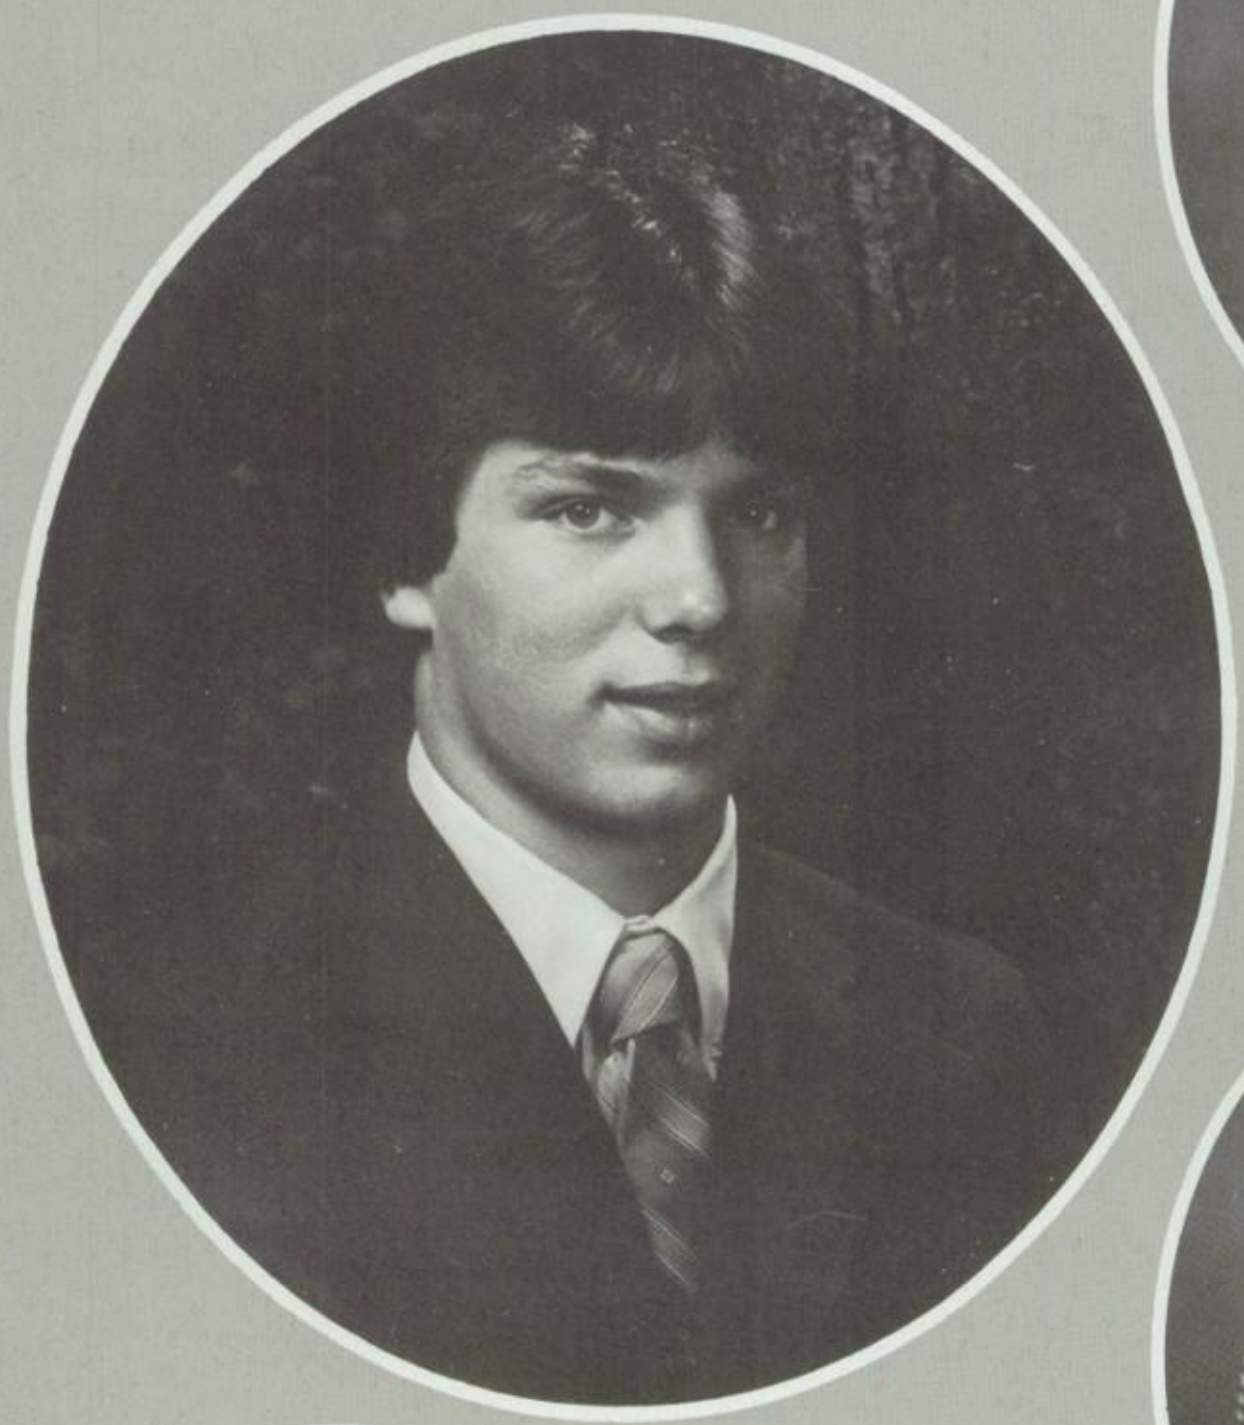
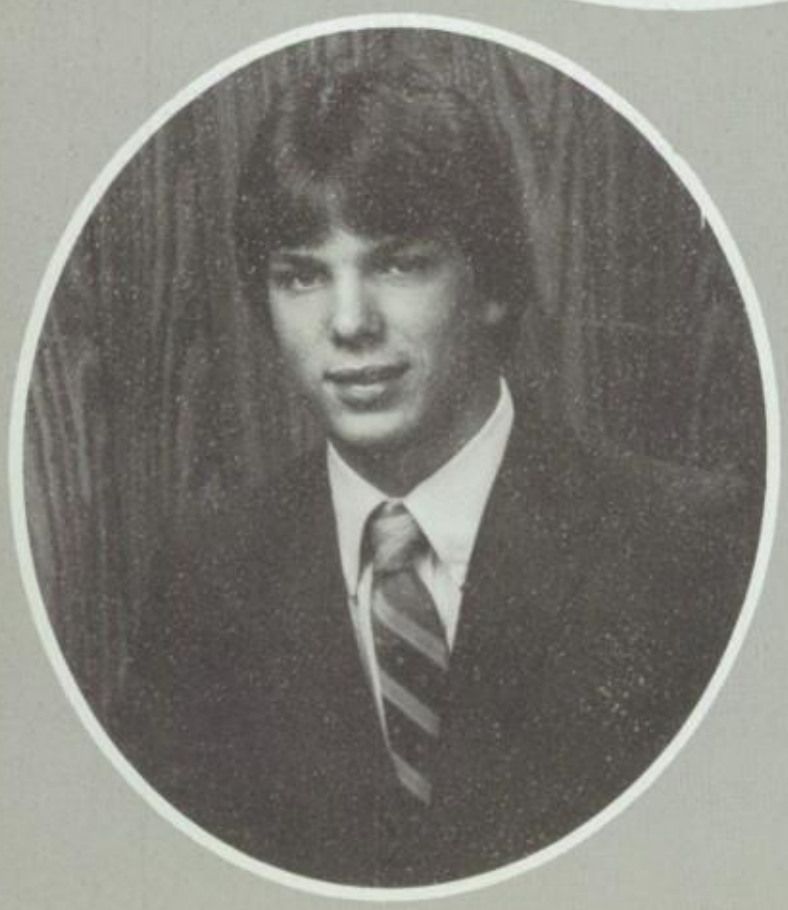
Warrior Chief XXXIX







Steve Harrison

The Warrior Chief nominated by the student body of Webster High School for 1984 was Steven Paul Harrison.

This honor was bestowed upon Steve not only for his academic achievements, but also for his service and dedication to Daniel Webster.

Steve, a highly deserving senior, was crowned with the official feather headdress at the traditional ceremony in front of the student body.

During halftime at the Webster-Claremore game, Steve escorted Renee across the field in his football uniform.

We will always remember our Warrior Chief Steve Harrison for the honor and sacrifice he gave to his reign.

Warrior Spirit Royalty

Each spring a special girl is chosen in a schoolwide vote to serve as band queen for the following year. Last year a very special young lady was chosen to receive one of the highest honors given by the Webster Band. Lisa Robinson was crowned as queen on the field with her attendants, seniors Karen Lowery and Cheryl Stanley, loyally by her side.

Two other very special leaders are extremely important in the Warrior Spirit. Drum Major David Reagle led the award winning band to an outstanding year in both marching and concert band. The other vital leader was Flag Corps Captain, Brenda Salsman. As a junior, Brenda led the colorful Flag Corps to a dazzling climax of beauty and expertise.

Ken Baird, the most recently aquired band director, has brought with him to Webster a very impressive list of qualifications and achievements. A graduate of Tulsa' Central High School, Baird is an accomplished professional trumpet player. He works in both the Clinton and Webster Music Departments.

As Co-Directors of the award winning Warrior Spirit, Mr. Ken Baird and Mr. Jerry Burdick worked together to produce one of the finest marching exhibition shows ever fielded by the Webster High School Band. Sincere appreciation and admiration is due this outstanding new edition to the Daniel Webster faculty

Senioritis: Plague of Fun

Homework, ah come on I'll do it in the morning. Test, I'll study in fourth hour. We can leave the party early and still have time to study.

Have you ever heard these words?

Have you ever said these words??

Then you have had contact with (and probably should see a physician for) the most destructive, disastrous, and the most fun of all the ailments that can be contracted by seniors. It can be fatal to grade point averages, and cause an irritation of the counselor.

If you think you have caught senioritis, send a completed incedental to Warden Meeker or Commandant Holt and,

Enjoy it while you can!!

The sophomore class came back this year with a little more knowledge and experience on how to run a class and plan its activities. The sophomores had a full calendar of activities planned for the school year. They sponsored the second annual "Teacher of the Month" contest. The class of '86 also sold stuffed animals, held a car wash, and sponsored the famous "Turkey of the Year" contest. The sophomore class was led this year by President Andy Taylor, Vice-President Angelique Pettie, Secretary Suzanne Leach, and Treasurer Lucinda Caine.

Around Thanksgiving we began thinking of who would be elected "Turkey of the Year" for 1983. After narrowing it down to five candidates a tough race followed. With such big turkeys it was hard deciding who was the biggest turkey of all, but Coach Hart turned out to be the unanimous favorite. Only a pretty big turkey would have been elected. He had a tough image to live up to after earning the title, but he did a great job.

Where can you find any Webster student who owns a car on a Friday afternoon at 3:45? CRUISING! Round and round the school we go, seeing who's out, and having a good time.

The best years of our lives are our teen years. So we try to enjoy them while we are able, by going to school activities, dating, going to parties, or just cruising down to the Twilight Zone for a quick game of Centipede or Zaxxon, or a game of pool.

They say that the most vivid memories we'll have after leaving Webster will be of our high school friends and CRUISING!

One of the most important parts of the yearbook club is the photography department. Although not recognized as a class in itself, a few students enroll in yearbook each year specifically because they want to shoot film and develop prints. This hobby provides many hours of tedious work and sometimes a lot of frustration, but for those students who enjoy it, photography can provide some of the most enjoyable hours high school has to offer.

"Come on!", "There ya go!", "Get him!", "Way to go!" Those are the cheers you'll hear from the Warrior side of any football game, basketball game, or wrestling match at Webster High School.

If there's one thing Webster has, its spirit. Spirit isn't just the cheering for the team or yelling at the Pep Rallies; Spirit is having pride in yourself and being proud of the fact that you go to Webster and that you live on the Westside. Spirit is serving your school, and your community as best as you can with all your ability. Above all, Webster has spirit.

Each year a Christmas tree is erected in the main hall at Webster. This year the Student Council bought a beautiful flocked tree and the Senior Class decorated it with blue and white bulbs. It was a warm feeling when you walked into the main hall of Webster and saw this elegant Christmas tree with its shimmering lights flashing on and off. The tree put a Christmas mood in all the students as they walked past the tree and in the background, through the front doors, they saw the snow gracefully falling outside. Christmas time is a special time for everyone and the Christmas tree just made it that much more special.

English Helps Understanding

Proper communication, a necessary part of today's society, is most often taught in English classes. In addition to grammar, there exists a wide variety of subjects covered in English, such as literature, poetry, composition, and creative writing. English is perhaps the most important course a student takes during high school, because not only does it strengthen his knowledge of English, but may also help him to comprehend certain aspects of the other courses he might take. The proper communication skills learned in English can help a person to lead a full and richer life, and better understand himself and those around him.

Learning From The Past

History is an important part of American education. Here at Webster, History is taught with enthusiasm and interest. Though, for the students, memorizing dates might be difficult, listening to lectures about mighty empires and humble slave nations might be very interesting. Among our History classes are: Ancient and Medieval, U.S. and Oklahoma, and World. History is an important part of our heritage and in learning from our ancestor's mistakes. Psychology and Sociology are classified as History and are also important in this way.

Our History department gives us a well-rounded education.

Math Minds of the Future

Formulas, equations, exponents, and angles are all related to the different math classes offered at Webster. Many students opt for the advanced math block and the new up-to-date basic computer class, while others, who do not find math their best subject, enroll in personal and basic maths.

Associated with the different math classes at Webster are the Math and Computer clubs. Such things as the Computer Dating game and the yearly trip to NSU at Tahlequah for competitive testing helped add enthusiasm to these groups. At Webster, the math students of today are working hard to become the math minds of the future.

Exploring New Frontiers

The science classes here at Webster are an integral part of the college-bound student's schedule.

The level of the science courses offered here at Webster range from the basics, such as science, and biology, up to the difficult, pains-taking, pull-your-hair-out advanced chemistry class.

All in all, the students who are enrolled in these classes have a bright future ahead of them when the high level of education they have received is considered.

Gearing For The Business World

Many business courses at Webster are geared toward the students who are preparing themselves for the job market rather than for college.

Webster has several unique classes in the business field. COE is one that gives seniors an opportunity to obtain training on the job while using knowledge learned in class. Word Processing also prepares seniors for highly technical jobs and training in their future.

FBLA is a business club that all students enrolled in a business class can join. FBLA encourages students to excell in their business classes and prepares them for the demanding business world they will be entering.

Students Learn Creativity

Restaurant Management and Art are just two of the many classes offered at Webster which deal with creativity. Both courses are unique in that they help students to become aware of talents they may possess in these areas.

Taught by Mrs. Euna Smith, students in Restaurant Management learn the many aspects of this particular field through classroom work, and the actual operation of Webster's very own student operated restaurant, the Glass Door.

Through the many different areas of art, students in the Art Department are able to realize their potentials in this area. Much of the work done in the art department is displayed in showcases throughout the school, and many of the wall murals around Webster were done by students from the art department.

Both classes are a good example of the many creative minds at Webster.

Experience Adds Skill

One of the most interesting and beneficial classes offered at Webster this year is the homemaking class. Whether it's hemming a dress, baking a cake, or learning single survival skills, all are a part of the homemaking classes that are available.

For the students who desire instruction in the field of industrial arts, there are many classes set up to help them develop their skills and talents. On the whole, industrial arts is a doing class for students who are good with their hands and feel that this learned knowledge is a valuable tool to them, now and in the future.

Drivers Education, Stage Craft Develop Basic Skills

Many students have never had experience behind the wheel of a car. Driver's Education can help a student get some supervised experience and learn the procedures while overcoming any fear the student may have. This is very valuable instruction to have before students are turned out on the roads by themselves.

Stagecraft students are important to our school productions and assemblies. Without these trained people to keep things running smoothly, many of our activities would not be well-lighted and well-managed. They have learned all the procedures of setting up the auditorium for assemblies, plays and coronations. We appreciate their work.

Special Classes Aid Students

Volleyball, basketball, calisthenics, and swimming are some of the numerous activities that students are allowed to participate in when enrolled in physical education. Physical education gives students a welcome break from a loaded schedule of academics by providing vigorous and stimulating activities for their enjoyment.

There is a group of special students at Daniel Webster that receive individual teaching and extra instruction in their daily classes. These students are given the opportunity to work at their own pace and on their own level on such subjects as mathematics, English, reading, history, and science. With the aid and direction of their instructors these students are able to receive a more personal, quality education that helps them prepare for life after graduation.

Learning While Doing

Most students at Webster who plan to enter the job market upon graduating from high school find either D.E. Marketing or a course at Vo-Tech an ideal part of their future. Both courses combine on-the-job training with in-class studies to provide students with the knowledge and skill for various aspects of the career world.

Students in D.E. learn in class, and through a part-time job the many sides of retail management, such as retail and marketing. D.E.C.A., a club composed of D.E. students, helps students find out more about the various careers in retail management through related activities, such as state conferences, and competitions.

Webster students in Vo-Tech are given the opportunity to take a one or two year course in such fields as trade, industrial, tecbnical, or health careers. Students in Vo-Tech are taught through hands-on techniques and classroom work. They are also given on the job training at the end of their particular course.

The Year of The Warrior

This year's football season was proof that the rewards of an undying Warrior Spirit are many. The Varsity football team, after a twenty-seven game losing streak, finally pulled out and showed what it was made of, making this truly the "Year of the Warrior."

With its victories in five of the seven games of its season, the Junior Varsity indicated what a valuable asset they should prove to be next year when many of the players become a part of the Varsity team.

Webster's first freshman team demonstrated remarkable ability during their season, despite the transition from Blue-T.

The football season proved to be a notable event for all those involved.

Through the coaching of Ernie Jones and Ron Bowles the boys that enrolled in the class were able to learn and perform the basics of wrestling by practicing these various moves one-on-one. Besides wrestling, the students were subjected to rigorous calisthenics as well as regular running sessions.

A Desire For Greatness

The building of a wrestling dynasty is a very difficult task. One that involves dedication, sacrifice, strong leadership, and a desire to attain greatness. Webster's wrestling dynasty is composed of athletes with all of these characteristics and more.

This year's wrestling dynasty competed against many of the finest teams in the state. With much determination this year's team succeeded in winning second place in the state three A competition.

Wrestlers on the team and students of Webster were exaltant over this victory and are very proud of this great accomplishment.

Round-ball Year-Round

For the Webster basketball players, Basketball isn't just a three month season. It's year round conditioning and practicing. At the beginning of the year some players are in fall sports while many others are already in off season basketball. Off season basketball starts as soon as classes begin. Some fall sports begin practice even during the summer. After basketball season many girls stay in off season basketball for more, while others prefer a change and go in to spring sports. Though alot of these girls are in other sports their first choice is basketball and it shows in their impressive record.

More Than Just Winning

Webster's girls basketball started off the new season with a new assistant coach, Dan Giddens. Mr. Giddens helped Coach Jackie Monroe to establish the ground work for a competitive team. They practiced long hours on improving their techniques and basic skills. The team consisted of freshmen, juniors, and one senior. Even though they had a disappointing season, the girls showed good sportsmanship and learned alot.

Those Soaring Warrior Spirits

"Flying free in the wind, the only sound the echo of running shoes as they graze the pavement." For many on the Webster track and cross-country team this is a very familiar feeling. But in addition to speed these runners must also possess determination and endurance. Winning isn't everything, but it does have its advantages and helps to build pride and confidence. Both teams have been quite successful this season, which caused their winning "Warrior" spirits to soar even higher.

Fast Balls Fast Plays

Baseball and softball are just two of the many impressive activities students at Webster participate in.

For this year's softball team, learning the basics of how to play and good teamwork were stressed more than just the desire to win. In addition to having a good time working together, girls on the team believe that they accomplished much throughout their season.

Many boys at Webster go out each year for baseball. Through rigorous practice sessions, the team comes to learn better the many skills of this game.

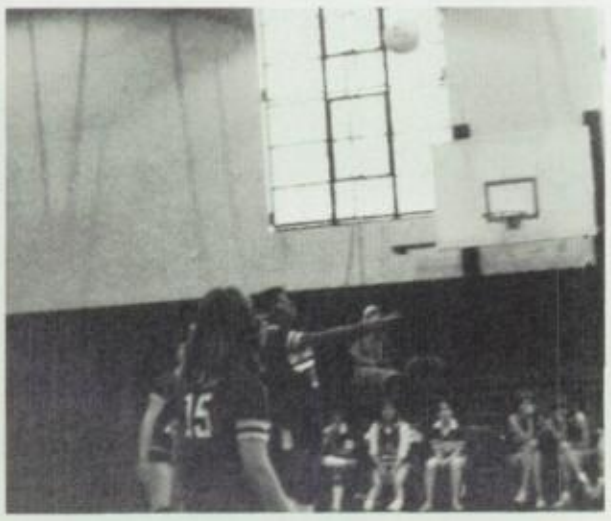
In Preparation Of Winning

1



"Get that ball over that net" is the key aim for the players on Webster's volleyball team. But often it isn't quite as simple as this. Along with just the key of the game comes many long hours of practice to prepare players for the many techniques of this. And when all the long hours of practice are over there are many rewards when the team comes up victorious. For Webster's volleyball team this year nothing could have been more closer to the truth!

Breaststroke, backstroke, butterfly, American crawl, dogpaddling.

Dogpaddling?

Yes, even dogpaddling. When it comes to swimming the Webster swim team knows no bounds. The swim team is just one of the many organizations at Webster where students get an opportunity to build themselves physically, compete among themselves and other teams, and have lots of fun while doing so. The swim team has had a very successful season this year especially the girl swimmers who won most of the meets they competed in.

Skill: A Unique Quality

"Are you sure that's not a chicken egg?"

"No, it's a golf ball."

"Won't break, will it?"

"It shouldn't."

"So I hit it with this stick, do I?"

"A golf club, yes."

"Will it hit back?"

"Depends on how you hit it."

"Hmmmmm. I don't know if I should risk it."

Golf is still a relatively new sport at Webster, but not all golfers are as reluctant as this. Patience and a steady arm are two of the essentials of playing golf. Besides winning, learning the fundamentals of this sport were the highest priorities for those on the golf team this year.

"You mean to say we hit that ball with this racket over that net?"

"Yep."

"What about that guy on the other side of the net?"

"He's supposed to hit it back."

"What does the ball have to say about this?"

"Not much."

Tennis requires many qualities of its players other than just being able to hit the ball over the net. For many of the long matches the student is involved in, he must also possess much skill and lots of endurance to ever succeed. Winning does have its rewards, but knowledge and skill in the game can make a person feel just as proud of himself, and this is especially true for the players on Webster's tennis team.

Stu Co Backbone of School Life

Student Council, the governing body of Webster, had a very busy year. To start out the year was the coronation of Miss Daniel Webster XLVI, Renee Hendrixson, and Warrior Chief XXXIX, Steve Harrison. This year's activities included Turkey of the Year contest, the annual campus cleanup, several dances, executive board meetings, monthly district meetings, and making of the school calendar.

This year Student Council separated and formed two separate committees, the Executive Board and the Homeroom Representatives. Both committees have worked hard to accomplish their goals and to strive for student participation.

The Student Council at Webster High School is the backbone of student involvement and activity both socially and academically. They play a major role in the development of school activities for the entire year. The Student Council at Webster helps formulate, organize, and direct the business of school life.

Journalists Add Class

Three classes at Webster in which students can express themselves through writing and other such activities are yearbook, journalism, and potpourri.

Yearbook is a class available for those students who are interested in writing, photography, and designing layouts. Before the yearbook may ever be planned, students must sell enough yearbooks to cover the entire cost of production. Throughout the year the yearbook staff worked hard together to create a yearbook that Webster can be proud of.

Journalism is a class composed of a select group of seniors with a talent for writing. Students in journalism learn the basic and fundamental concepts of Journalism. This year the Journalism class participated in contests and wrote news articles which appeared weekly in the Tulsa County News. They also wrote and produced their own television show, which appeared on cable channel #27.

Potpourri is a literary group that publishes a booklet containing poems, short stories, and other literary works written by the students of Webster. The Potpourri staff meets bimonthly to judge the literary works that are submitted by students of Webster.

These three individual groups work together to enhance the writing skills of Webster students.

Running solely on inspiration, the yearbook staff works 27 weeks to publish Webster's annuals. The work is tedious, the pay is small, but the band of dedicated warriors work long hours to inspire their journalistic genious. It's an easy job, but somebody's gotta do it!

Clubs Help Community

Key Club is a service organization that serves Webster and its surrounding community. The Key Club assisted with crowd control and float protection at Webster's Homecoming Stationary Parade, and combined with Red Cross to deliver Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets to needy families. The Key Club assisted in the selection and encouragement of the formation of the Keywanettes.

The Keywanettes are a group of young women organized by the Key Club. To be a member of the Keywanettes, one must display the talents of leadership, citizenship, and have a respectful grade point average.

The Keywanettes, headed by E. Latimer, sponsored various activities and fund raisers this year such as candy sales to start off the year. They met once a week to discuss upcoming events and plan for the oncoming year.

Clubs Add Culture

The Language Club and the Indian Club are both clubs which deal with the study of different cultures and societies.

The Language Club is an organization formed by the Spanish and French students that are now taking or that have taken a language course. Some of the activites the Language Club participated in this year include the Sweetheart Dance, Mardi Gras, and candy sales. The Language Club also sponsored the yearbook dance in which all the proceeds went to help support this year's yearbook.

Not limited to only students of Indian descent, the Indian club provides an excellent opportunity for many who are interested in the Indian society. A visit to the Wooloroc Museum, attending a pow-wow at the University of Arkansas, and selling Valentine cards were just a few of the many activities the Indian club participated in this year.

Both clubs are ideal for those students wishing enlightenment in the cultures of other societies.

Spirit and Pride A Winning Combination

At Webster there exists many groups whose sole purpose is enthusiastically supporting the many events Webster takes part in. One such organization is the Pep Club. Unlike the many other spirited organizations, the Pep Club has no requirements of its members, except that they should possess lots of spirit and enthusiasm for cheering Webster on. And just about every one at Webster has this quality. "Go Webster Go!"

The Rewards of Sacrifices

Sweaty sneakers, frizzy hair, and tired bodies were just a few things the Warrior Spirit Marching Band experienced during their early morning practices at the beginning of the school year. But despite all of the sacrifices, the many vigorous mornings of practice were well worth the effort.

The season began for the band with a marching contest in Catoosa in which they placed first in the 3A division and sixth overall. From Catoosa the Warrior Spirit continued on to the Renegade Review sponsored by the Union marching band, in which they received third place in their class. The next stop for the band was the Oklahoma Bandmasters Association competition where they placed second in their class, and won a trophy and a participation plaque. The March-a-rama was by far the most successful contest of the year for the band in which they placed second in their division.

The flag corp, a colorful backup for the band, was quite successful this year as well. At camp they placed first and were declared outstanding flag corp at the March-a-rama.

This superior display of marching, music, and other abilities proved once again that, that "Warrior Spirit" continues to march proud.

Groups Build School Pride

Two groups at Webster which help build school pride are the Stage and the Concert Band. Both are concerned with the many aspects of music, including classical and modern.

A small group of student musicians chosen by audition is the Stage Band. Most of the music played by the Stage Band is of a Jazz nature, although sometimes rock music is introduced. The participants of the Stage Band compete in many competitions, and often perform concerts before live audiences.

The Concert Band is a large group of musicians, whose music is basically of a traditional nature. Students in Concert Band are able to explore the many aspects of this form of music. They also participate in several musical competitions throughout the year.

These two groups are great for those students who have a strong liking for many forms of music. Their performances are appreciated not only by the participants, but also by the great many listeners at Webster.

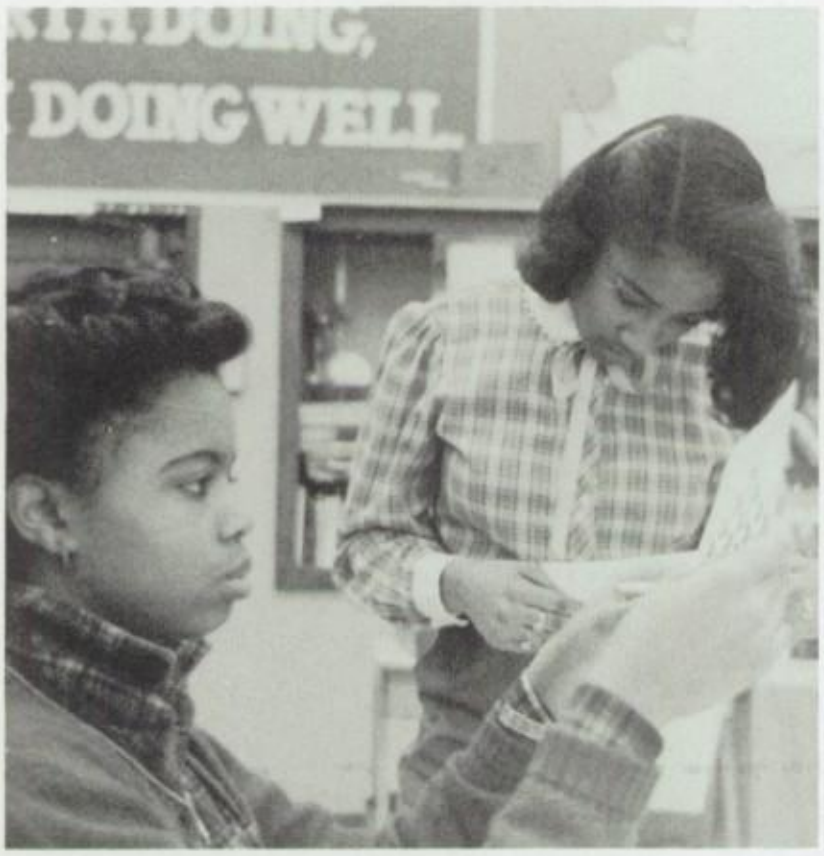
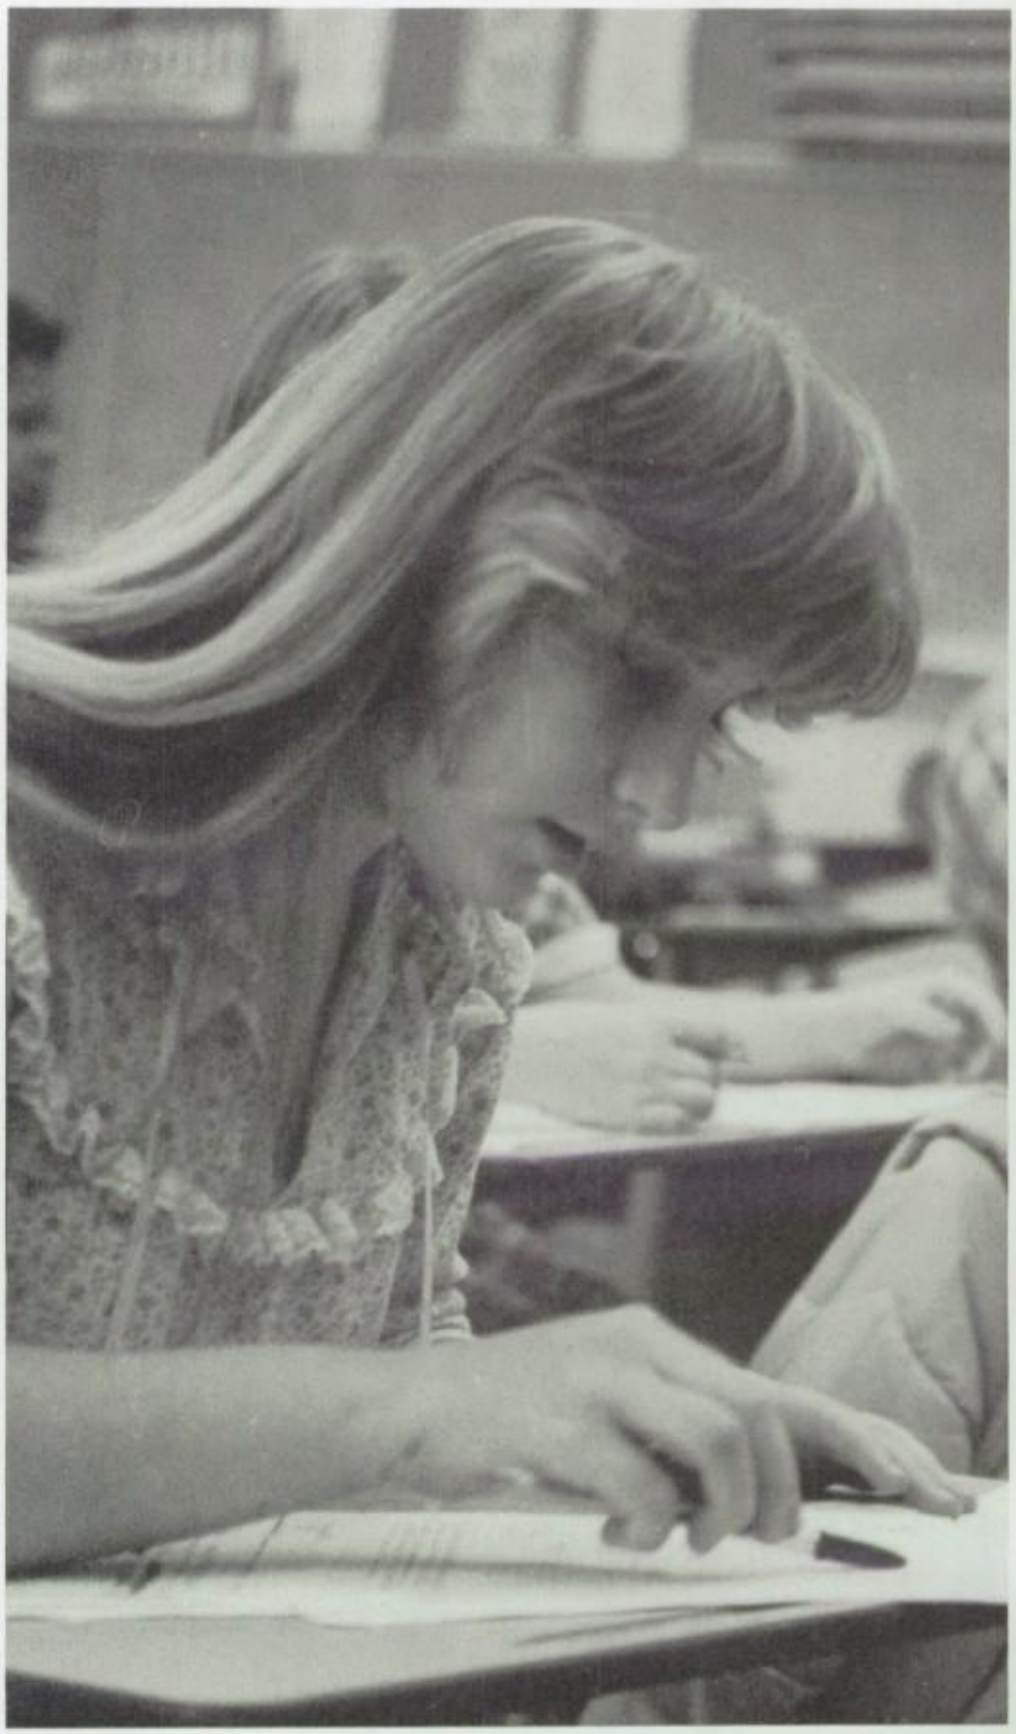
Lift the Chorus Ever Upward

Wrestling matches, term papers, Webster jazz festival, and college applications kept the winter season hopping, making it certainly one of the busiest times of the year for most students.

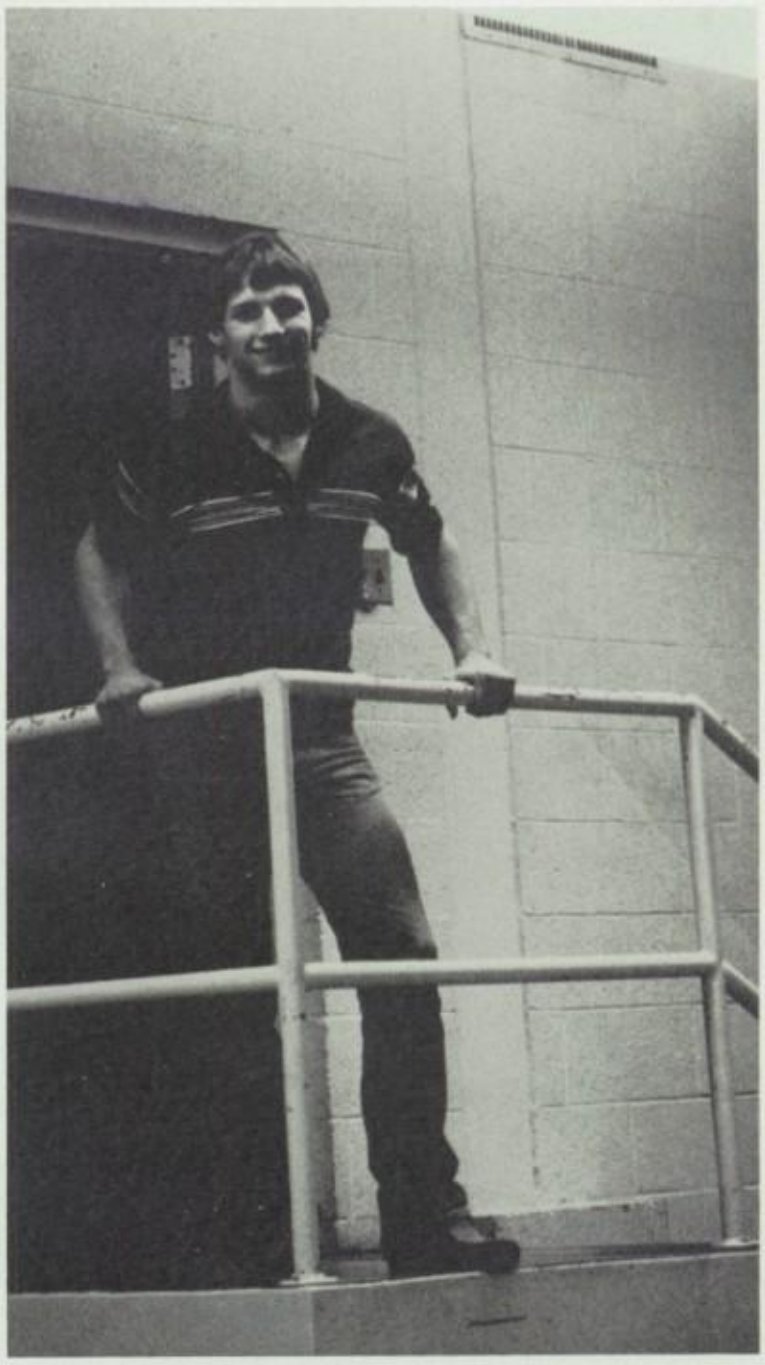
Almost overnight, the cold winter became warm spring, and spring fever prevailed over many a student. Thoughts now began to turn toward that night when the Mabee Centers doors would open, and Daniel Webster's would close.





Loyal White and Blue

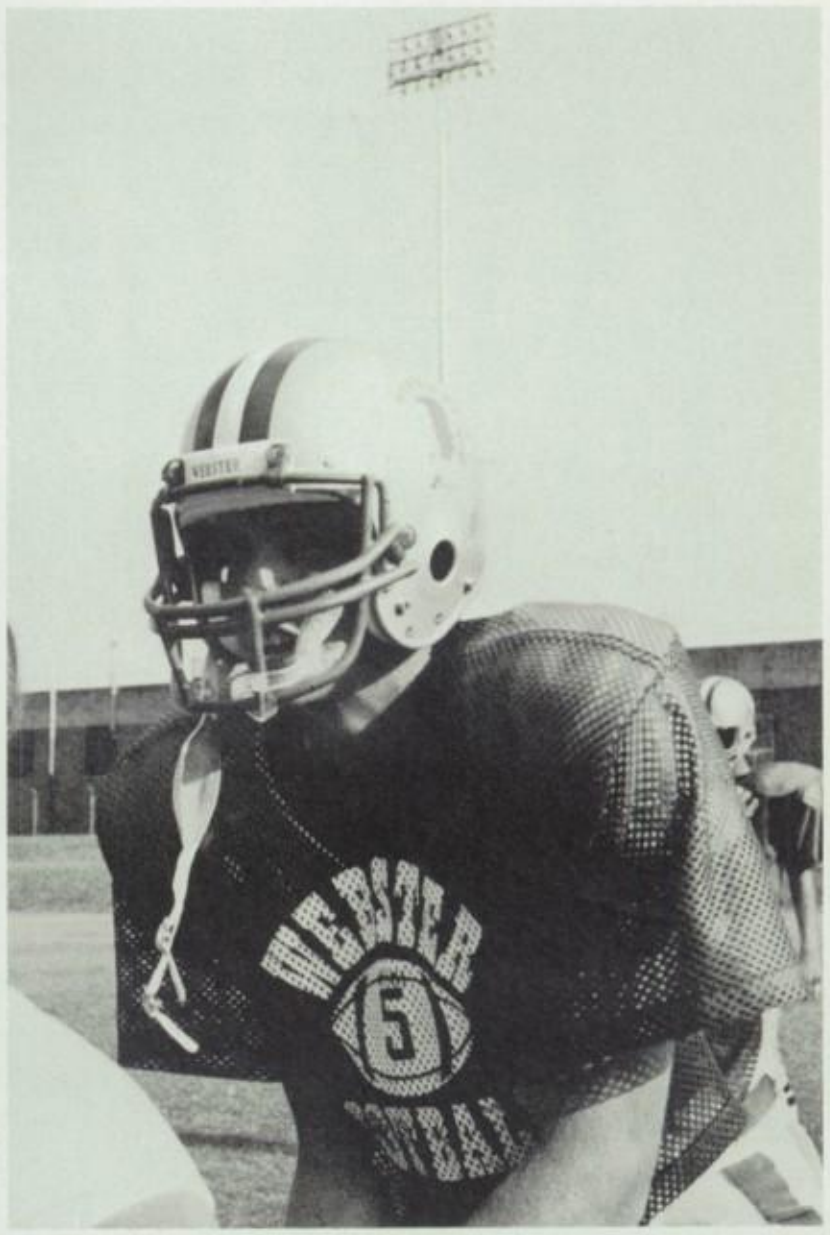
While faculty fought budget cutting legislators that threatened our schools, students prepared to take the spring break that looks to be one of the last in the history of Oklahoma



As more Webster students began to look for summer jobs, the end of school seemed closer than ever before. Spring athletics began, along with spring marching practice. As the days grew longer the time grew shorter for the class of '84.

Hail to Thee our Alma Mater

The final weeks began and all eyes were on the first graduating 4 year class from Webster High School since 1955. Time was running out for the Seniors. The yearbooks were in, gowns were passed out, invitations had arrived, and the Seniors made the final steps towards graduation.



The time had come and our hearts beat high with pride. The big things of tomorrow seemed small for awhile, because it was time to wish the best to those appointed to succeed. In hearts and minds and halls of Webster, the memories of all our lives will stand . . . FOREVERMORE!

Webster, We Love You!
